NAMIBIA

Namibia is the land of deserts, from the Kalahari in the east to the Namib in the west. It has the highest sand dunes in the world and a timeless landscape of shimmering plains and rugged mountains. The many national parks and game reserves host a variety of wildlife, some species specially adapted to the harsh environment. The country is a rich tapestry of cultures and a visit here also offers the opportunity to interact with the indigenous people like the nomadic Himba. It is now possible to cover enormous distances between deserts, dunes and oases by scheduled light aircraft transfers that provide breathtaking views of this extraordinary land from the air.

Highlights

Desolate, stunningly beautiful Skeleton Coast; Sossusvlei Wilderness Camp; Marine life off the coast of Swakopmund; The rugged wilderness of Etosha and Damaraland; Serra Cafema Desert, home of the Himba People.

Game Viewing

Best during the dry season (May-Oct). Etosha is Namibia's premier wildlife park. In the desert areas you will not find large numbers of animals, but there are rare and interesting species to be found.

Climate

Namibia's climate is the driest in Africa. The cold Benguela current keeps the Namibian coast cool and rainless. Inland rain falls during the summer (Oct-Apr) as thundery showers. Summer days are hot and the nights cool, whilst winters are sunny and cold.
