

MADAGASCAR

The world's fourth largest island, Madagascar is a strange land of exotic landscapes resplendent in their variety, ranging from palm-fringed beaches to spiny forests and limestone labyrinths. A nature lover's dream, it shelters a plethora of unique species from baobabs to chameleons and lemurs. It's important to note that the country has very limited infrastructure for tourism, so even seasoned travellers may find the country's services and accommodation challenging at times. However, that's all part of the adventure!

Separated from Africa millions of years ago, Madagascar is the Galapagos of the Indian Ocean - most of its mammals and many of its reptiles, birds and plants are found nowhere else in the world. The island is best known for its ancient lineage of primates, including the giant indri, lemurs, sifakas and the aye-aye. Madagascar was also a historic meeting point between Africa and Asia, with a rich blend of Indonesian and African cultures.

AVENUE OF THE BAOBABS

Popular with photographers, the Avenue of the Baobabs is a stretch of dirt road lined with extraordinarily large baobab trees estimated to be around 800 years old. This destination lies just over 30 minutes inland from the town of Morondava, located on Madagascar's remote west coast. Morondava can be easily included in your itinerary as it can be accessed by air from the capital city of Antananarivo.

MADAGASCAR SECRET HIDEAWAYS

4 days/3 nights

Departs daily ex Antananarivo^

Reconnect with nature at these intimate and luxurious eco hideaways in the heart of pristine rainforest or at the edge of coral-rich seas. At Mandrare River Camp you may see up to 5 species of lemur and many other endemic creatures within sacred spiny forests protected by local Antandroy tribes. Dig your toes into the white sands of beautiful Manafiafy Beach & Rainforest Lodge and wander forests teeming with weird and wonderful flora and fauna. Further north, you can voyage across Antongil Bay, a breeding ground for humpback whales, to Masoala Forest Lodge and the largest tract of pristine rainforest left in Madagascar. Combine two or more of these lodges for a unique and exclusive Madagascar experience.

^Masoala Forest Lodge 3 night package departs Sundays only.
