Welcome to Volume 2 of our Newsletter for 2019. In this edition we look back at some of our team’s recent adventures to some of our sensational destinations, including Botswana and Kenya. We also feature some truly special properties and cruises from all around the globe, such as South Africa’s Grootbos Private Nature Reserve and a new luxury cruise that ventures into the pristine Indonesian Archipelago.

A major focus in this newsletter is Africa. We showcase wildlife-rich Sabi Sabi in South Africa, tantalizing Tanzania and an interview with CEO Steve Cameron on the future of the Serengeti National Park. Sri Lanka and the outstanding Resplendent Ceylon properties are also showcased, along with insights from one of our destination specialists, Jess Hamilton, who recently returned from the ‘tear drop’ island paradise.

Antarctica remains an increasingly popular destination and we feature a special air cruise with Quark Expeditions, leaders in polar travel for decades. Their ‘Fly the Drake’ itinerary departs from Punta Arenas in Chile by air to King George Island where the cruise commences. This avoids the potentially rough two or more days crossing of the Drake Passage.

We also focus on some of Canada and Alaska’s wilderness lodges that offer a diverse and exclusive experience. Katmai Wilderness Lodge has sensational brown bear viewing whilst Spirit Bear Lodge is home to the unique Spirit Bear, a white subspecies of the black bear. A double-page feature on the remote Northwest Territories highlights the thrilling northern lights experience at Blachford Lake Lodge and introduces the unique opportunity to travel alongside Canada’s caribou migration by snowmobile.

We hope this newsletter will inspire you to travel to our wilderness destinations in the future.

WILD TIGER CENSUS INDIA

The results are in from the All India Tiger Census 2019 which highlights that tigers are worth far more alive than dead. In fantastic news, tiger numbers are up 33% to just under 3000 individuals. This has come about largely thanks to tourism and the outstanding job done by park officials and rangers every single day. The flow on effect is an increase in rural education and greater job opportunities for locals.

OFFSET YOUR FLIGHTS

We all love to travel but you can reduce your impact on our planet by offsetting your greenhouse gas emissions from your flights. Carbon Neutral use the funds raised through donations and carbon offsets to plant native trees on degraded land in Australia. The fund has planted over 5.4 million trees in 160 sites since 2001. For more information visit their website: https://cnrf.com.au.
Our General Manager Anne-Marie (Annie) Zambelli was captivated by Tanzania’s wildlife on her visit there in May. Here she reflects on what she describes as a surreal experience while encountering Africa’s big cats, baobab trees and changing landscapes.

BIG CATS AND BAOBABS

“I woke to the sound of a new day with dawn light casting shadows into the valley below. We are in Tarangire National Park, one of the country’s lesser known parks and home to huge herds of elephants and giant baobab trees. During our all-day game drive we are treated to several families of playful elephants, giraffes and antelopes galore, along with a huge herd of grazing buffalo. Back at the lodge as the sun sets it’s time to relax with a gin & tonic and toast Tarangire! Continuing through changing landscapes we reach the southern plains of the Serengeti. Late rains mean there are still plenty of wildebeest, plus young calves feeding on new grass. We see our first big cats – a young female cheetah chasing down a herd of antelope, and the famous Marsh pride of lions with 7 adorable cubs. The next day we saw six cheetahs and the following day five different leopards including a small cub. Visiting Tanzania in low season has its advantages as there are fewer vehicles (for most of our big cat sightings we were alone) and substantial savings on fabulous accommodation.”

TREASURES OF TANZANIA

One of the important elements of any safari is where you stay and on this trip I experienced three camps from the Lemala collection. With properties in Arusha, Tarangire, Ngorongoro and the Serengeti, Lemala has the northern safari circuit covered.

Their camps are small and more intimate and offer superior and stylish accommodation in some of the best locations. Mpingo Ridge in Tarangire sits on the top of the escarpment and has undoubtedly one of the best views I have seen in Africa while Lemala’s classic camp in Ngorongoro Crater is hidden in the forested rim perfectly positioned and only a short drive from the crater floor. On the eastern side of central Serengeti is the contemporary Nanyukie Tented Camp, the newest member of the portfolio. What made the camps so special was the staff – from the managers to waiters, chefs, housekeepers, gardeners, Askaris (night watchmen) and guides we met along the way. All performed their roles as best as they could and always with a smile. That is the spirit of Lemala.
Africa faces many challenges to protect its unique flora and fauna. In 1950, Bernhard and Michael Grzimek published "Serengeti Shall Not Die", a book that created awareness about these issues.

What’s changed since then and how do we protect one of Africa’s greatest treasures? Here’s what AWS CEO Steve Cameron had to say:

“The first time I travelled through the Serengeti was January 9th, 1981. I drove by myself and during the course of the drive I saw one car, which is very different to what you see today. Now, there is a far greater human presence.

Grzimek raised the awareness of what the Serengeti means, and his observation is a very compelling one. Since then many people have been involved in trying to ensure that the Serengeti will always support huge numbers of wildlife. The numbers of wildebeest and zebra always fluctuates depending on drought, poaching and disease. The main influence moving forward is human encroachment into these areas, which will make it difficult for animals to migrate as they once did. It is something we are already seeing to the north in Kenya’s adjacent Masai Mara where fences are being erected for farming.

This will have a major impact on wildlife, conservation and on the future of places like the Serengeti. We should never take these areas for granted and the fact is we must always work to preserve them.

One of the most important factors is tourism. If people don’t visit the Serengeti, who’s going to pay for its survival? All wildlife areas have to support themselves, as they need a viable income stream and that is generated by tourism”.

A luxury safari operator Sanctuary Retreats has created authentic experiences for over 20 years. Their extensive portfolio of outstanding camps and lodges are situated in pristine locations extending the length of the African continent, including four properties in Tanzania.

Located in the remote southern Serengeti, guests at Sanctuary Kusini are treated to exceptional and essentially private game viewing. The camp is positioned on the migration path, with January to March the ideal time to witness the wildebeest calving season.

In a secluded region of Tarangire National Park Sanctuary Swala Camp nestles amongst giant acacia trees. Elephant sightings are frequent as these peaceful giants walk amongst the picturesque landscape filled with baobab trees.

Sanctuary Ngorongoro Crater Camp is enviably located close by to the access road that leads down to the crater floor. Less travel time means a later start with the best chance to see predator activity in the early morning.
In May this year AWS Destination Specialist Jess Hamilton and Marketing Manager Rolf Huber both had the chance to experience some of Kenya’s prime gameviewing areas for the first time.

Rolf also explored Kenya’s beautiful Samburu and Masai Mara game reserves and was in awe of its wildlife and people.

“Having never visited Kenya before, I was excited to experience all this amazing country had to offer. The semi-arid Samburu Game Reserve left a lasting impression on me. The contrast of the red earth and the green doum palm groves with the scenic mountains as a backdrop was incredibly beautiful.

The wildlife was the another highlight, seeing the unique long-necked gerenuk (also known as the giraffe gazelle) and the Somali ostrich with its blue thighs were two species I’d never seen before.

The vast plains of the Masai Mara didn’t disappoint either. During my stay I experienced incredible gameviewing, but it was also the interaction with the local Masai people, many of whom still lead their traditional nomadic lifestyle, that was a personal highlight.

The Mara is also one of the best places to enjoy a hot air balloon safari. Seeing the mottled landscape and wildlife from the air was an experience worth waking up at 4:30am for!”

Twiga Tours, our highly respected Kenyan operator has been creating memorable wildlife safaris to some of the country’s best wildlife areas since 1980. Their methods have remained consistent focusing on personalised tailor-made itineraries providing the highest quality of service.

Company CEO, Minaz Manji, from time-to-time still welcomes guests to his home, popping a bottle of champagne and sharing a meal with his family, listening to clients’ stories and experiences first hand.

Safaris are led by highly-trained driver/guides in premium 4WD land cruisers with pop-up roof hatches (for close-up gameviewing and photography) that cater for a maximum of 6 guests.

With a range of comfortable safari lodges and camps, expert staff and a fleet of custom-designed vehicles, clients can expect personal itineraries to suit their every travel need.

For more information on a Kenya safari, contact one of our Africa specialists on 1300 363 302.

Jess recalls the excitement of her first time on safari in Kenya.

“There is nothing quite like being on safari in Africa, and my first trip to Kenya was truly unforgettable. From watching enthusiastic elephant calves playing in the stunning Samburu National Reserve, to seeing the sunrise over the famous Masai Mara from our hot air balloon, each day had something special to offer.

I’ll never forget the first time I saw a lion in the wild, a beautiful lioness on the hunt one morning in Samburu. She was completely unfazed as she sat down in front of our vehicle.

That feeling of exhilaration combined with a complete sense of calm as we watched in silence is hard to describe, and one that I became more and more familiar with as the days went on.”
Observing wildlife in its natural habitat, listening to the sounds around you, smelling the scent of the bush and “touching” the wilderness lightly, can be a soul stirring experience.

Sabi Sabi Private Game Reserve in South Africa is a pristine wilderness with a biodiverse habitat supporting a myriad of species. It forms part of the Greater Kruger National Park allowing for an uninterrupted flow of wildlife.

The reserve has four award-winning five star lodges which are all very distinct in character and atmosphere. All are accredited as National Geographic Unique Lodges of the World and epitomise style, comfort and opulence. Sabi Sabi’s genuine hospitality and regard for excellence create an unforgettable experience for their guests.

Forty years of conservation at Sabi Sabi has allowed people to get close to the animals, as they don’t associate the presence of humans with stress or discomfort. The incredible Field Guide and Shangaan Tracker teams are highly trained and passionate individuals who communicate to guests the important role we play in the natural environment; how it all fits into conservation and ultimately the bigger picture.

Very recently two new born leopard cubs were spotted on the reserve and they are learning to climb trees and become stealthy hunters under the watchful eye of their mother. However, Sabi Sabi’s safari etiquette is to allow them to get used to their surroundings before game drive vehicles can take guests closer – maybe even close enough for their piercing golden-green eyes to meet yours.

As a safari is about losing yourself in the moment and absorbing what you are experiencing. It is not always about the big sightings, but also about getting to know the small things. A walking safari with your guide opens up an entirely new world as the ground you walk on literally comes to life while you examine the vegetation, miniscule insects, lizards, birds and frogs. You become part of the landscape and understand that you are part of something amazing that needs to be protected for future generations.

On foot or in a game drive vehicle, a Sabi Sabi safari experience is unsurpassed.
A five-star luxury experience in a pristine, untouched landscape, Grootbos Private Nature Reserve is an unparalleled food, wine and nature destination.

Situated close to the tip of southern Africa, this renowned eco-lodge and reserve is located in the heart of an award-winning boutique wine region. The complex terroir and mild ocean winds have been crafted into fine wines by the passionate local winemakers, achieving distinguished examples of Pinot Noir, Chenin and Sauvignon Blanc.

Grootbos’ passion for wine has been translated into the careful curation of a maturation cellar, compiled over a decade of purchasing from the prestigious Cape Wine Makers Guild and the Nederburg Wine Auctions. This collection features the very best selection of wines from the region.

Notable wines include the Newton Johnson Sea Dragon Pinot Noir (2015) and Grootbos’ very own the ‘Last Syrah’ (2015). The ‘Last Syrah’ is a Paul Cluver block of Syrah bought and made exclusively for Grootbos.

Understanding that it is fine food and wine together that enhance the dining experience, Grootbos has developed their wine and culinary vision in tandem. Contemporary, innovative menus feature the freshest locally sourced organic ingredients, with dedicated Grootbos sommeliers and wine stewards at hand to guide guests, matching local flavours with the region’s wines.

This is best experienced with the 6-course wine pairing dinner in the atmospheric Grootbos wine cellar. Or guests can head out and explore the region’s wineries with a Grootbos sommelier, and experience the wine culture of the region first-hand with access to the cellars, vineyards and winemakers.

The Grootbos 5 star experience also includes a collection of curated outdoor activities, from whale watching and marine wildlife cruises in beautiful Walker Bay, to botanical safaris, bird watching, hiking, horse riding and fat bike tours on the sand dunes.
Summer in southern Africa is a season of plenty, when afternoon storms bring life-giving rain to the dusty plains and there is an explosion of new life.

The bush is transformed into a green and leafy paradise, with vibrant floral displays and a kaleidoscope of colours. It’s peak season for birding, with some bird species in full, spectacular breeding plumage. Many of the plains game like wildebeest, hartebeest, zebra and impala give birth, and predators take advantage of the abundance of young prey.

Normally arid areas like the Kalahari are transformed with fields of flowers; grass sprouts in the ancient river valleys and fossil pans provide food for large concentrations of springbok and oryx. Warthog families can be seen with young piglets in tow, and young ostrich chicks keep up with their long-legged parents.

Temperatures during this time are very pleasant, without October’s oppressive heat, nor winter’s cold nights and mornings.

Being outside the busy dry season, and the peak holiday season for Europe and the US, the summer months of November through to April (apart from Christmas/New Year) mean quieter camps and well-priced safari packages.

Wilderness Safaris’ stunning portfolio of safari camps offer an exclusive and immersive experience in pristine wilderness areas, like Botswana’s Okavango Delta, the Linyanti and the Kalahari. Those camps with access to permanent water feature boating and mokoro excursions in search of water-adapted red lechwe and prolific bird life.

Likewise in Zimbabwe’s famous Hwange National Park their camps have access to the incomparable Ngamo Plains which teem with wildebeest, zebra, giraffe and eland, and sometimes roan or sable antelope. Other big game include buffalo, elephant, lion and leopard.

Very attractive rates are an added incentive for a summer safari. We’re talking about top quality lodges and camps in the best game areas, including twice daily safari excursions by open 4WD vehicles, highly qualified guides, all meals, drinks and laundry. Many camps offer guided walks with an armed guide, bush picnics, sundowner drinks and some have plunge pools for cooling off in the midday heat. Welcoming and professional staff are always on hand to ensure your comfort, safety and enjoyment.

These are life-changing journeys through southern Africa's most beautiful wilderness. Please contact our destination specialists for a personalised safari package.
African Wildlife Safaris copywriter James Cameron visited wildlife-rich Botswana in June this year, exploring the unique Kalahari Desert and the oasis paradise of the Okavango Delta on a mobile safari: “Staying at quirky Jack’s Camp I was completely blown away by the wonders of the Kalahari. Each day offered a totally different experience; cycling through herds of wildebeest, quad biking the open desert landscapes or enjoying a sumptuous dinner under the sparkling night sky. The unique desert-adapted animals are just as fantastic to see. Witnessing an aardwolf and a porcupine on a night drive was a definite highlight, whilst getting up close and personal to a ‘mob’ of meerkat going about their daily business was truly special. Heading north by light aircraft to the Okavango Delta’s Moremi Game Reserve I was shocked at how dry the landscape was. With little rain over the previous few months the conditions made for exceptional gameviewing. Letaka Safaris 10-day fully-serviced mobile safari was a very intimate experience. There were just two other Australians on the tour which took us from the Moremi to the renowned Chobe National Park. Outnumbered by the staff, the level of service I experienced was extraordinary. The three camp staff Vicks, Paka and Alec were terrific, always ready with drink in hand when we returned from our many fantastic game drives. Our very experienced and witty guide Bate made it a safari of a lifetime. Having worked as a ranger, he knew every spoor, animal call or footprint we came across. I’ll never forget one night when a very cheeky honey badger came sneaking into camp to raid our kitchen. He waddled right past us as we were playing cards at the table!”

We are thrilled to announce that our Botswana ‘guru’ Anne-Marie Zambelli will once again be leading a small group tour to this most sought after safari destination. Annie lived and worked in Botswana in the 1990’s and considers it her second home. A wildlife aficionado she knows many of Africa’s prime wildlife areas and safari camps intimately.

This special departure has been chosen to coincide with the summer Season of Plenty (also see pages 16 & 17) when the bush is lush and green, the flowers are blooming, the birds are in full plumage and the antelope are calving. It is also designed to take advantage of summer season pricing, offering great savings on top of the range safari camps like Chitabe and Kings Pool in Botswana and Elephant Camp and Linkwasha in Zimbabwe. This fabulous 14 day/13 night itinerary commences in Maun, a quaint frontier town at the edge of Botswana’s famous Okavango Delta, and finishes in Victoria Falls Zimbabwe. Everything is included: light aircraft transfers, full board accommodation, all drinks (premium brands excluded), game drives in open 4WD vehicle, park fees, laundry and gratuities. All this for just AUD$22,950 per person twin share. Only your international flights are not included. Please note that places are strictly limited as there are only 8 rooms in total – maximum group size 16. For more information please call Anne-Marie on 1300 363 302 or (03) 9249 3705.

Magnificent Katmai National Park in Alaska is home to the world’s largest concentration of grizzly bears – approximately 2,200 – and the best place to see them is at Katmai Wilderness Lodge. This remote, but comfortable eco lodge hug the shore of Kukak Bay, and families of bears roam the meadows and coastal flats right outside the lodge.

The lodge is managed by Perry and Angela Mollan who love welcoming visitors and sharing their knowledge of the flora and fauna. Perry is a fourth generation Alaskan and he and Angela have lived and worked in the park for many years. They even got married here. They and other experienced guides take guests on daily excursions by boat or on foot to look for bears. With 42 different mammal species in the park visitors may also see seals, sea otters, fox and possibly wolves and whales.

With a maximum of 12 guests at the lodge you are unlikely to see any other people in the area, making this an intimate and unique wilderness experience.

“Katmai provided exactly what we went there for; Bears! Perry, the head guide, is highly experienced and knows many of the bears by sight. We saw bears every day, on foot and up close on multiple occasions”. - Michael King
BRITISH COLUMBIA

Great Bear Rainforest is a place of beauty and mystery, with towering thousand year old trees, moss covered glades, wolves that swim and fish, and black bears that are white. Called Spirit Bears or Kermode bears, these rare creatures are a white variant of the North American black bear. Both parents must carry a copy of the mutated gene for their offspring to be white. They have always been protected by Indigenous peoples who have never hunted them and even refrained from speaking of them to hunters and fur trappers.

According to the Ktunaxa, the creator Raven made the Spirit Bear to remind them of a time when the land was covered in ice and that the people should be thankful for the lush and bountiful land of today. Along with grizzly and black bears, one of the best places to find these magnificent animals is at Spirit Bear Lodge in the heart of the Great Bear Rainforest. This comfortable and cozy lodge is owned and operated by Indigenous people, and offers exclusive access to some of the rare Spirit Bear viewing areas in the recently created Spirit Bear Conservancy.

We eagerly await the arrival of an IMAX movie about the Great Bear Rainforest, narrated by Canadian actor Ryan Reynolds which should reach Australia early in 2020. We will keep you posted.

POLAR BEARS OF CHURCHILL

Each year in October and November, huge numbers of polar bears gather on the shores of Canada's Hudson Bay near the tiny town of Churchill, Manitoba. This annual congregation occurs when the bears are waiting for the lake to freeze, so they may venture out onto the ice to hunt for seals.

During this narrow window, Natural Focus offers exciting tundra based tours to see these magnificent animals. There are three styles of tours to choose from; adventurer, enthusiast and specialist ranging from 3 to 5 nights in length. These tours explore the pristine Arctic tundra landscape in search of bears aboard a Tundra Buggy, a specifically-designed all-terrain vehicle.

The vehicles allow for safe and up-close viewing of the world's largest carnivore. These heated buggies have opening windows providing exceptional photographic opportunities. We strongly recommend the 5 night program, as a pre and post tour night in Winnipeg is included.

Also available is the purpose-built Tundra Buggy Lodge, consisting of dining, lounge and sleeping units. This “lodge-on-wheels” offers guests more time out on the tundra, and features open-air decks and informative evening lectures.

All tours start in the capital city of Winnipeg with its many attractions including the fantastic Manitoba Museum, housing over 2.5 million artefacts spanning 12,000 years in its archaeological collection alone.

BLACHFORD LAKE LODGE

CHASING THE LIGHTS

Canada's Northwest Territories touches the Arctic Ocean and boasts towering mountains with waterfalls twice the height of Niagara Falls and skies that illuminate through the night with the magic of Aurora Borealis. Here wildlife far outnumbers humans, yet the people you meet are a part of the experience with great stories to share, rich in history, tradition and music.

Yellowknife is where visitors flock to view the famed Aurora Borealis. Due to the city's location (directly beneath the auroral oval), the lights are visible here more than anywhere else on earth. There are two Aurora seasons in Yellowknife; August and September provide autumn temperatures, whilst winter (December to March) is when the night sky becomes crystal clear and temperatures drop below freezing.

For travellers seeking an off the grid experience, Blachford Lake Lodge offers a fly-in, fly-out personalised experience. Only 20 minutes from Yellowknife by scenic flight, stay in comfortable, private cabins and enjoy a wide array of daily activities including viewing the northern lights from your doorstep.

SPECTACULAR NORTHWEST TERRITORIES

“With three teenage boys we need adventure holidays. We played ice hockey, went ice fishing, walking and fat tire biking. We sat around the fire and told stories whilst toasting marshmallows. The highlight was definitely seeing the aurora borealis.”

- Sally Constable -

“The Northern Lights were definitely the highlight. The fact that Blachford Lake Lodge was so remote meant there was no light pollution to ruin our chances of seeing them. The food was also incredible every single day, and the hot tub was great to relax with a drink.”
